EVERYBODY IS NOW FOR COMIC OPERA

The way in which the tickets for "The Mascot" have been taken up once more shows how Honolulu appreciates good local talent, and what a music-loving town it really is.

Comic opera was ever popular here both by amateurs and professionals. In fact, some amateur "companies" have made greater hits than several professional shows which have played in Honolulu.

Probably the largest and most enthusiastic run for some years was made by Pollard's Juveniles, and well they deserved it.

They, however, only revived interest in the comic opera which, owing to a great scarcity of those productions, and gradually waned in Honolulu. Now, however, interest is at the highest pitch, in evidence of which is the great rush for seats for "The Mascot." The first night is practically sold out, and there are but a very few good seats left for the Saturday night performance.

Tonight the dress rehearsal which, owing to the postponement of the original dates of the production, had to be delayed also, will take place. So far as proficiency is concerned, this rehearsal will be better than a great many opening night performances have been, as "The Mascot" was more than ready to be produced on Thursday last, as originally intended. Rather than keep the whole company idle, however, the management decided to hold a few rehearsals just to keep all hands in, so that on Thursday night next "The Mascot" will take the stage in a condition of excellence seldom seen before in local amateur productions.

Charles Dousbery and Stephen Smith, the pirates who took the schooner Lady and wrecked her, will be sentenced by Judge Dole this morning at 10 o'clock.
